Hall of Presidents

"Of all the presidents, Ronald Reagan—in real life—has the most animated face, always in constant movement, with a particular emphasis on the smile," says WED sculptor Blaine Gibson.

This fact would, seemingly, make it easy to create the Ronald Reagan Audio-Animatronic figure for the Walt Disney World Hall of Presidents in Florida, but this wasn't the case. Instead, it became a rather large challenge, to show the President's tendency to smile while giving him the dignity needed for the show.

"We put the smile in his Irish eyes," as Gibson describes the President's special type of twinkling eyes.

Ronald Reagan is the newest true-to-life Audio-Animatronics figure in the Walt Disney World Hall of Presidents. Startlingly realistic, he takes his place between the figures of Presidents Eisenhower and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Reagan is the third new presidential figure added to the Hall since it was opened less than ten years ago.

All the nation's Presidents appear on a giant curved stage—a dramatic setting for the presentation which traces the history of the world's most powerful office.

President Reagan's likeness is the 39th figure to take its place on the stage. His addition to the Hall of Presidents ends a six-month creative and technical process. It began just after the November election when Disney artist Gibson began studying pictures of Reagan and closely watching his television appearances. Though he has never met any of the Presidents, Gibson has molded the likenesses of more than half of them.

Gibson tries to capture the inner personalities of the people he sculpts. "With President Reagan, I've tried to capture an inner sense of humor there, and the eyes show it."

While Gibson was creating the bust of the President, Disney costumers were talking to his tailor and shirtmaker, getting exact specifications. The two-piece gray suit the Reagan figure wears was designed to those measurements using a fabric recommended by his tailor. Gibson notes that President Reagan is extremely conservative, but expensively dressed. The President's hairstyle hasn't varied much in all his political years, yet his barber was consulted before the wig was designed and styled.

This painstaking detail is prevalent throughout the Hall of Presidents. Each costume matches the original, not only in style, but in the cutting and sewing techniques used during the period of the president's life.

Finally, the figures are brought to life by Disney "Imagineers" using the process called "Audio-Animatronics." Each movement is created by individual controls on a computer console. When the life-like movements are finalized, they are recorded and fed into a master computer. Then the voices, movements and music—even the raising and lowering of the curtain—are synchronized automatically, controlled by computer.

Generally, Reagan is said to be more handsome than the average president. "As an actor, he projects a certain amount of charm," adds Gibson. As with other figures, the Reagan image turns and nods as he is introduced. Seated, he also moves his crossed leg slightly during the address of President Lincoln.

The Reagan likeness will be seen by millions of people who visit Walt Disney World during the year-long "Tencennial" birthday celebration, which began October 1, 1981. 🐭

Focus on the MONTEREY PENINSULA

To some visitors, the Monterey Peninsula means golf...especially the annual Bing Crosby National Pro-Am event hosted in February by the three great courses: Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill.

To others, the Peninsula means exploring famed Cannery Row and the colorful Monterey Fisherman's Wharf. Or taking one of the self-guided walking tours of old Monterey historic sites. Art aficionados head for the many art galleries in the quiet village of Carmel...by-the-sea.

In a lovely setting of pine and cypress trees, with a beautiful white sand beach as a bonus, Carmel beckons its visitors in a relaxed manner to unique shops, cozy restaurants offering cuisine to please every palate, and art galleries galore. Typical of those in Carmel is Bleich Gallery West featuring the impressionist landscapes and seascapes of George Bleich, shown painting on location above. Exhibits of both local and national art personalities are frequently previewed on the peninsula.

Shopping is an adventure in Carmel along and beside Ocean Avenue, the main street. A charming thatched cottage, the Tuck Box, features delightful edibles for breakfast and teas, plus imported gifts. Shoppers delight in the jewelry, apparel, toys, in various shops in Carmel Plaza, along with I. Magnin, Joseph Magnin and Peck & Peck. Come-Fly-A-Kite is a unique shop, selling kites from all nations.

The residences of Carmel have a storybook charm. As do many lodgings, from comfortable modern to rustic cabin-style, many with real fireplaces, kitchenettes, ocean views and continental breakfasts. Many are like poetic hideaways, with rooms looking through tree tops into courtyards abundant with baskets of ferns, begonias and fuchsias.

Below Carmel Village, off Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road, is The Barnyard...a unique cluster of authentic California barns housing a myriad of shops and eating establishments and a wonderful book store featuring its own restaurant. Here you can wander down brick walkways lined with flowers and shrubs and browse to your heart's content. Lunch on homemade soups and quiches and partake of the local wines.

John Ernst Steinbeck Jr. made Cannery Row and other places on the Peninsula immortal by his novels including "Cannery Row," "Sweet Thursday," and "Tortilla Flat". A bronze bust of Steinbeck faces the street leading to the Row and is a favorite camera subject. History lives in the Wax Museum of Old Monterey on the Row, depicting famous persons in local historical settings. None of the old canneries is now in operation, but have been converted into galleries, shops and fine restaurants. Before the mysterious disappearance of the sardines in the mid-forties, the canneries had hummed with the industry and employed more than 4,000 workers. Now there's a carousel to ride and big cookies and ice cream for the kids at the Edgewater Packing Company.

Monterey's old Fisherman's Wharf is small by comparison with others and can easily be explored on foot in an hour. The salty aroma of fresh fish permeates the air where markets offer fresh shrimp or squid cocktails, loaves of San Francisco sour dough bread and iced drinks. There are several sit-down restaurants serving the day's catch of rock cod, sole, sand dabs and seasonal salmon. The fresh air is invigorating as you watch the fishing boats coming in while friendly resident harbor seals beg for a handout.

In October, an event that attracts thousands of visitors happens in the Monterey Bay community of Pacific Grove. It is then that millions of Monarch butterflies migrate from Canada to spend the winter in a specific grove of trees in the vicinity of Lighthouse Avenue and Seventeen Mile Drive. The Feast of Lanterns Festival takes place here from July 21-25.

Seventeen-mile Drive through dense forests, by beautiful residences, alongside the surf and tidepools of the Pacific, is a must for the visiting tourist. It is well worth the $4 toll to take this famous route, with a picnic lunch to complement this outstanding scenery of white beaches, stately pines and wind-weathered cypress.

There are so many nearby attractions on the Peninsula—Big Sur, the Point Lobos state reserve, the Carmel Mission Basilica and Santa Cruz's boardwalk amusement park 40 miles to the north. There's also the Monterey Jazz Festival in September. Championship car races at Laguna Seca. Some of the most beautiful natural scenery in the nation. All of which combine to make the Monterey Peninsula a vacation destination the entire family can enjoy.

Seldom Praised Works of Art

At Disneyland and at Walt Disney World, as in any other organized establishment, how could you hope to find your way around without the visual aids of signs and directions?

This means of communication, in its early form nothing more than a simple printed signpost, has become an art in its own right, with the use of delicate to bold lettering and graphics.

At Disneyland, 14 dedicated artists in the Sign and Pictorial Shop make sure that identifying signs within the Park are easy to read, pleasant to the eye and themed to the area and time which they represent. Their talents go beyond the painting of signs, since they are also responsible for the fresh and realistic appearances of Disney character heads, animated figures, posters and stage backdrops. Although designs and art work may originate in the Walt Disney Studio or from WED Enterprises (the "Imagineering" Division of Walt Disney Productions), it's up to the craftsmen and women of the Sign Shop to mix the authentic colors and apply their handiwork by brush or airbrush to any project where touching up is needed.

But it is to the colorful signs throughout the Park that the Sign Shop artists point with the most pride. Just look at them! The Disneyland City Hall, American Egg House, Candy Palace, Camera Shop, Antiques, Pirates of the Caribbean, the good ship Columbia, Jungle Cruise, Space Mountain, and many more. Every lettered board, window sign or other display used to identify is a beautiful example of their demanding albeit satisfying art.

Where would we go—wandering aimlessly, searching, forever searching—without them? 🐻

Tokyo Disneyland Project Underway

Walt Disney once said: "I think what I want Disneyland to be most of all is a happy place — a place where adults and children can experience together some of the wonders of life, adventure, and feel better because of it." So, too, will Tokyo Disneyland combine all the elements of showmanship, masterplanning, and quality which have made people everywhere "look to the name Walt Disney for the finest in family entertainment."

Tokyo Disneyland, a joint theme park project between Walt Disney Productions and Oriental Land Company, will open in 1983. It is Disney's first involvement in an overseas theme park.

Many of the most popular shows and attractions from the Disneyland and Walt Disney World Magic Kingdom's, along with three, new, specially-designed attractions, will be featured in the five themed lands encircling Tokyo Disneyland's Cinderella Castle. With the design process virtually complete, many of the shows are currently being fabricated at Disney's WED Enterprises facilities, the company's design and engineering arm.

"Pinocchio's Daring Journey" will be a new attraction unique to Tokyo Disneyland's Fantasyland. The magic of Pinocchio's world as he is transformed from a wooden puppet into a real boy will be recreated in this charming show. Guests will meet many of Pinocchio's friends along the journey, Jiminy Cricket being among the favorite featured.

"Meet the World" and "Japan 2000," two shows currently under design for Tokyo Disneyland, will be located in Tomorrowland. "Japan 2000" theater, utilizing five projectors, will partially surround viewers with spectacular scenes filmed in various locales in Japan. The spacious theater will provide a close-up, wide-screen view of the colorful show.

"Meet the World" is planned as a multi-media experience focusing on the resourceful and adventurous ways in which Japan has grown and developed in the world community. The "Meet the World" show can best be described as a sort of reverse of the Walt Disney World "Carousel of Progress," with the outer ring housing the four, full stages surrounding a rotating inner ring which will be the seating area. After each act, the seating sections revolve 90°, bringing the audience to the next era in Japanese history. Guests will experience the nation's saga through the "magical powers" of a storyteller who will transport them from prehistoric times up through the present.

A major conceptual expansion over its United States predecessors will be the totally "climatized" World Bazaar. Comparable to the Disneyland and Walt Disney World "Main Streets," the World Bazaar will be completely protected by a roof to permit operation in all weather conditions.

In addition to World Bazaar, where shops, restaurants and picturesque courtyards will be themed to turn-of-the-century America, Tokyo Disneyland will include Adventureland, Westernland, Fantasyland and Tomorrowland.

Visitors to Adventureland will leave civilization behind as they experience the mystery and romance of exotic tropical regions of the world in attractions like "Pirates of the Caribbean" and the "Jungle Cruise." Westernland will afford Japanese citizens the opportunity to get a taste of the American frontier recreated in the "Diamond Horseshoe Revue," "Country Bear Jamboree" and the "Rivers of America." Disney favorites such as the "Mickey Mouse Revue," "Snow White's Adventures," "Peter Pan's Flight" and "It's a Small World" will be among featured shows in Fantasyland. And Tomorrowland, like its United States counterparts, will offer guests futuristic thrills in attractions such as "Space Mountain," "Starjets" and "CircleVision 360°."

Just as Walt Disney World was not an exact duplicate of Disneyland, Tokyo Disneyland will not be a carbon copy of either park, yet its philosophy remains the same: Tokyo Disneyland will be dedicated to family entertainment...a place as old as yesterday and as modern as tomorrow...a place for children to enjoy the adventures of adulthood and where grown-ups can once again enjoy the pleasure of being a child. 🐻

SHOWBIZ IS TOP

All-American College Marching Band

Royal St. Bachelors

The summer of '82 promises to be another one of excitement and top entertainment at Disneyland Park. Repeating last year's successful variety show, Space Mountain Stage will feature "Show Biz Is" — a delightful look at show biz, from vaudeville to movies to stage shows.

With the humorous and sometimes dubious help of Mickey,

Minnie, Donald, Goofy and other Disney characters, a talented group of dancer/singers provides a colorful medley of tunes from many eras. This musical montage combines the tap dancing of vaudeville, the rhythms of Latin America and the precision of "A Chorus Line." Its performers barely pause for a breath between numbers as they race through costume changes at an unbelievably fast pace. "Show Biz Is" is fun to see, and you can see it every day of the week this summer in Tomorrowland.

And of course you won't want to miss the popular Main Street Electrical Parade and the dazzling nightly "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks.

ENTERTAINMENT

Main Street Electrical Parade

As in past seasons, Disneyland will feature top musical talents on stage nightly. Famous singers and groups will appear on Frontierland's Rivers of America stage.

At the far end of Main Street, the Carnation Plaza Gardens continues to offer fans one of the few remaining spots for dancing to the music of big bands. A different famous band is spotlighted weekly.

There'll be happy music around every corner of the Park! Rock sounds will emanate from both the Space Mountain Stage and Tomorrowland Terrace.

Other free entertainment includes the All-American College Marching Band, the Dapper Dans singing group, Disneyland Band, Royal Street Bachelors and Coke Corner pianist, among others.

The popular unlimited use ticket, "Passport to Disneyland" continues to be offered at the Park. The Magic Kingdom will be open from 9 a.m. to midnight Sundays through Fridays and 9 a.m. to 1 a.m. on Saturdays, beginning June 19 through the fun summer season. 🍌

EPCOT CENTER nears completion

Construction and planning on Walt Disney World Epcot Center continue at a frantic pace to meet its scheduled opening date of Oct. 1. The gigantic Florida project, an $800-million showplace, features two distinct entertainment worlds—Future World and World Showcase. It will bring the 21st century to its visitors, allowing guests to explore the exciting technologies of tomorrow, plus the many pleasures of the cultures of foreign lands.

Epcot Center will be linked to the Magic Kingdom by a new eight-mile monorail system which will give summer guests a preview of the Center under construction.

An eye-catching landmark, a 180-foot high geosphere called Spaceship Earth, serves as the entrance to Future World. Its interior adventure is presented by the Bell System. Other major U.S. corporations sponsoring stimulating concepts of the future include Kraft, Exxon, General Motors, Kodak, General Electric and Sperry Univac.

World Showcase will showcase the cultures of eight nations with native architecture, music, dance, arts and crafts and the typical cuisine of each land. In authentic settings of an English pub, French sidewalk cafe, German beer garden, Aztec pyramid, Japanese shrine, Italian piazza, Mexican fiesta and the Canadian woods, visitors will have the feeling of having traveled around the world without having left the States. Excursion boats, much like those of northern Europe, will be available to transport guests across a 40-acre lagoon to and from the international pavilions.

Within World Showcase, American Express and Coca Cola will present the American Adventure. Here, Benjamin Franklin and Mark Twain will head a cast of 36 famous Americans who come to life via Audio-Animatronics in great moments of our country's history.

All of the elements necessary to make this international showplace a memorable entertainment experience...the landscaping, buildings, shops, costumes, show installations...are coming together to make this, Walt Disney's greatest dream, become a dramatic reality. 🐭

Let's go to the Movies

"ROBIN HOOD" This Easter, Disney animation fans will be treated to the first reissue of the classic film, "Robin Hood." The popular legend of Robin and his Merry Men of Sherwood Forest is retold in a full-length cartoon feature after having been told in every form of communication since the strolling 14th century minstrel.

Robin Hood is a crafty, adventurous fox whose voice is that of British actor Brian Bedford; Little John, whose voice is supplied by Phil Harris, is a fun-loving bear; Peter Ustinov speaks for Prince John, a scrawny, neurotic lion; Maid Marian, a vixen whose voice is provided by Monica Evans; Terry Thomas voices Sir Hiss, Prince John's sycophantic snake counselor.

Speaking for the portly badger, Friar Tuck, is Andy Devine; Pat Buttram is the Sheriff of Nottingham, a boastful wolf; Roger Miller, the noted composer and singer, is the easygoing minstrel rooster, Allan a Dale.

Brian Bedford, in the character of Robin, the wily fox, is a well-known English actor who made his professional debut at age 21 in "Hamlet." Among other awards, Bedford won a Tony for his 1971 Broadway performance in "School For Wives."

The multi-talented British star, Peter Ustinov, who voices not only the scrawny Prince John, but also King Richard, writes, produces and directs in addition to his acting assignments.

A former band leader, radio and TV personality and night club entertainer, Phil Harris adds his own colorful personality to the part of the bear character, Little John.

To what lengths did the Disney Studio Animation Department go to bring this noted production to the screen? If the approximately 350,000 drawings, including early pencil test reels, made by the 15 animators and 23 assistant animators on "Robin Hood" were laid in a line, they would form a path some 40 miles long! About 100,000 painted cels, depicting the moving characters, were produced, along with 800 hand-painted backgrounds.

In color by Technicolor, "Robin Hood" is a Buena Vista release. Look for it this Spring in your favorite neighborhood theatre.

"BAMBI" To the delight of animation fans, a third Disney classic feature will be re-released this year (in addition to "Fantasia" and "Robin Hood"). "Bambi," a favorite of young and old alike, will be issued for the fifth time, beginning in June.

The popular film, tracing the life of a loveable deer named Bambi from his birth to adulthood, returns to the screen with all of its original enchantment and drama, featuring several of the most memorable cartoon characters ever created. Bambi's friends include Thumper, a captivating cottontail, and a wistful little skunk whom Bambi names Flower.

Bambi's youth in the Great Forest is filled with both pathos and humor. Thumper proves to be Bambi's mentor, teaching him names of other animals and, during the winter, the finer points of ice skating. The little rabbit emphasizes his instructions and expresses excitement by thumping his rear paw rapidly on the ground. When Flower comes nose to nose with Bambi in a woodsy setting of blossoms, Bambi mistakenly names him a "flower," a name which Flower happily adopts.

When Bambi's beautiful mother is killed by a hunter, the Great Prince, the stately stag who is Bambi's father, protects his son and guides him, eventually aiding his escape from a consuming fire that destroys the forest.

Because of the sparse dialogue in the film, the timeless music of the late Frank Churchill plays an enormous mood-setting role in the story.

For the basic theme, Churchill composed the haunting "Love Is a Song," with Larry Morey supplying the lyrics. This song and the score were nominated for Academy Awards. Other featured songs were "Little April Shower," "Let's Sing a Song About Spring" and "I Bring You a Song."

Felix Salten was a recognized Austrian literary figure by the time he wrote "Bambi," his first work translated into English in 1929. Salten later wrote "Perri," the story of a pine squirrel which Walt Disney also made into a movie and released in 1957. A 1959 Disney movie, "The Shaggy Dog," was based on Salten's novel, "The Hound of Florence."

Filmed in brilliant Technicolor, "Bambi" is being re-released by Buena Vista. 🐰

Southern California's Newest Family Attraction

New "FANTASYLAND" Planned for 1983

The reaction of guests to Disneyland may very well be similar to that of Alice's when at first they visit the area known as Fantasyland this summer.

Because, until the summer of 1983, many things in Fantasyland will be topsy-turvy and many familiar landmarks missing as the Magic Kingdom prepares a brand new adventure, a bright-new look and improved attractions to further enhance this land of make-believe. Continuing to entertain guests through the 1982 summer season will be "Mr. Toad," "Alice in Wonderland," the Storybook Land Canal Boats, "Peter Pan" and "Casey Jr.," as well as untouched "It's a Small World" and "Motor Boat Cruise."

All architectural exteriors in Fantasyland will be re-styled to create the European atmosphere of a storybook village. Added will be landscaping, animation and improved development of the themed look for which Disney is famous.

Present attractions will be revamped to more closely relate to the Walt Disney films from which they emanated.

The 72 wild and wonderful hand-carved horses of the King Arthur Carousel will cavort in a newly landscaped area which will still be visible from the drawbridge entry of Sleeping Beauty Castle. This relocation will improve spaciousness and access throughout the area.

In vehicles resembling Gepetto's carved wooden toys, Disneyland guests will experience an exciting new "Adventures of Pinocchio." They will live in the world of make-believe like the puppet who became a real boy. An Audio-Animatronic Jiminy Cricket will help them choose between the "easy" and "straight and narrow" paths of life. Afterward, guests can enjoy sidewalk dining with tasty take-out food from the new Pinocchio-themed restaurant.

"Pinocchio blinked his eyes and raised his wooden arms. 'I can move!' he cried. 'I'm a real boy!'"

"No," the Blue Fairy said sadly. "You have life, but to become a real boy, you must prove yourself brave, truthful, and unselfish." Whereupon the Blue Fairy dubs Jiminy Cricket the Lord High Keeper of Pinocchio's Conscience.

From the Walt Disney Productions feature film "Pinocchio," first released in 1940.

In the new "Peter Pan" attraction, the guests' journey will begin in the Darling children's nursery—a replica of the one in the original film. They'll fly with Peter Pan over the sparkling nighttime lights of London to Never-Land encountering many hazards along the way. There they will witness the dazzling display of swordsmanship between Captain Hook and Pan on a square-rigged pirate ship. And then, Tinker Bell will turn the ship to gold...as the exciting adventure continues.

"Peter Pan was a boy who had decided never to grow up. He lived in faraway Never-Land, a magic place filled with lots of fun and adventures."

From the Walt Disney Productions feature film "Peter Pan," first released in 1953.

Disneyland guests will join the erratic Mr. Toad in a new and expanded wild ride with additional animated characters and thrills, when the entire Fantasyland reconstruction is completed. Their vehicles will be careening through a village where a hat shop was once located.

"Mr. Toad, the squire of Toad Hall, is a wealthy and reckless sportsman with a love of excitement that borders on mania. His friends, Water Rat, Moley and MacBadger worry a lot about Mr. Toad's escapades. From the Walt Disney Productions feature film, "The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad," released in 1949."

AT ALL NEW MOVIELAND, YOU'LL REALLY FEEL THE MAGIC OF HOLLYWOOD.

Feel the terror of the scary new Black Box.
Feel the fantasy of new Backlot Boulevard.
Feel the excitement of over 200 stars.

Movieland is all new for '82. So come stroll through real sets used in actual Hollywood films on the new Backlot Boulevard. Then, enter one of the scariest places on earth—The Black Box. But be ready to be chased and tormented by the monsters from Hollywood's horror hits: Halloween, The Alien, and more! Can you survive a million dollars worth of special effects and terror? If not, Beware The Black Box.

And of course, it wouldn't be Movieland without our incredibly lifelike likenesses of over 200 movie and TV stars in over 100 realistic settings. Newman and Redford, Marilyn Monroe, John Wayne, Superman, the Star Trek crew, Streisand—if they're hot, they're probably at All New Movieland. So stop by and put some magic in your vacation.

Open every day and night of the year.
One block north of Knotts. Bring your camera.

7711 Beach Blvd., Buena Park, CA Phone: (714) 522-1154.

Where you'll really feel the magic of Hollywood.

Even before they enter the new "Snow White's Adventures," guests will get a clue as to its interior story when they observe the jealous Queen looking down from her tower above. This is in keeping with the new design feature of creating a preview show to entertain guests even as they are queuing at the entrance to the attraction.

In a faraway land, a long time ago, there once lived a king and queen with their daughters—who was beautiful beyond compare. Her name was Snow White.
From the Walt Disney Productions, feature film "Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs," first released in 1937.

When guests fly with Dumbo in the 1983 version of the attraction, they will fly over a lagoon and fountain of sparkling water. Timothy Mouse will remain as before, directing the parade of soaring circus Dumbos.

Dumbo, the baby circus elephant, discovers that he can use his large ears as wings and fly, and he becomes the sensation of the circus.

From the Walt Disney Productions feature film, "Dumbo," first released in 1941.

Sometime during the early summer of 1984, the swirling teacups of the "Mad Tea Party" will be repositioned near a newly-designed "Alice in Wonderland" attraction. A new Mad Hatter souvenir shop will also be relocated near "Alice," thus adding to the overall theming of the storybook land of Fantasyland. In the new "Alice", there will be an enlarged flower garden setting and thrilling encounters with the animated Queen of Hearts, her friend the White Rabbit, the Dormouse and the Hare.

As Walt Disney prophesied, Disneyland will continue to be improved upon...in a happy place that has the magic touch to make storybook dreams come true. 🐰

Ever drifting down the stream—Lingering in the golden gleam—Life, what is it but a dream?

From "Alice in Wonderland" by Lewis Carroll

BEST OF THE WEST

When you take your family on a Western vacation, make sure you include the best of the West... Knott's Berry Farm.

It's the oldest themed amusement park in the whole world! And Knott's is one of the few places where you can still ride an authentic stagecoach, come face to face with gun-slingin' desperadoes, and pan for real gold dust.

And that's just for starters. There's more than 150 acres of wild 'n woolly fun and excitement, with over 135 wild rides, shows, and adventures to tame.

And that includes the double loop Corkscrew and a backwards upside down roller coaster called Montezooma's Revenge!

The shows, we might add, are some of the best in Southern California. And with 32 specialty shops and Mrs. Knott's world-famous chicken dinners, the fun just never seems to stop.

So, come on! We're right here in Buena Park, just 10 minutes from Disneyland. If you're coming all the way out West, you sure don't want to miss the best of the West while you're here.
